a. Pollution has rattled the natural order of our ecosystems and has brought heavy consequences to Earth’s inhabitants. The major reason for Pollution is the unchecked and illegal activities that misuse natural resources and don’t follow guidelines set by the pollution control boards across the country. Anything that causes Pollution is known as a pollutant. It can be a solid, liquid, or even gas. No matter what state the pollutant is in, it can have devastating effects on our natural ecosystem if it is left unchecked.

Water pollution forms a major category of Pollution and has become an urgent crisis in many countries. We cannot survive without water. So, when most of the water bodies will dry up or get choked, the human population will come to an end. The next big form of Pollution is air pollution. It is mainly caused by toxic exhumers from vehicles and the burning of coal for electricity.

Soil pollution is witnessing an unexpected rise in recent times owing to the mass deforestation and illegal farming activities in tropical forests. Another significant yet largely ignored form of Pollution is noise pollution. The high decibel noises coming out from jets and airplanes contribute to noise pollution. It damages our eardrums and, in extreme cases, causes deafness.

b. Population explosion more than often comes under negative limelight. It is so because more population means more exploitation of natural resources, and it isn’t good for the environment. It leads to the devastation of flora and fauna in that place. More population means more industrialization, which means more pollution of water and air. It also leads to inequitable distribution of the money i.e., per capita income of the country drops. The higher population needs more investment for better infrastructure. If the government cannot provide that, it leads to a poor standard of living. It becomes difficult for the government to provide employment. It sometimes leads the unemployed youth to the path of crime, and thus the country becomes a bad neighborhood to live. The food produced every year is insufficient, and it becomes costly. Because of which the prices of other useful items also increase. It has also been seen that where the population is high, the status of women is subordinate.

c. Mobile Phones were invented by Martin Cooper in 1973 but the mobile phones were brought into the market in the year 1983. A mobile phone is a device which connects you with people even if you are far away from them. They can make you connect with your friends and relatives who live in abroad. Earlier, the mobile phones were able to perform very fewer functions but nowadays mobile phones perform a lot of functions such as of calculator, alarm, video chat, messaging, you can also make presentations, click pictures etc. Mobile Phone is an important and popular innovation of technology and has its own advantages and disadvantages.

In this essay, the advantages and disadvantages of Mobile Phones are being discussed.
